The average man, according to Leslie's, has enough "ingredients" to make fat for seven bars of soap, iron for a medium sized nail, sugar to fill a small bowl, salt to fill a shaker, lime to white wash a chicken coop, phosphorus to make twenty-two hundred match tips, magnesium for a dose of magnesia, sodium to neutralize a pint and a half of water, potassium to explode a toy cannon, sulphur to rid a dog of fleas and albuminoids to make a case of eggs—and yet in the light of all this wonderful combination, some women speak slightlying of man.

"Portland After Dark" is the subject of a lecture to be given by Earle Albert Rowell, a newspaper man of Portland, in the Moose Hall, McChesney building, Tuesday evening, January 26th. This thrilling and entertaining lecture has been delivered to record crowds over Oregon. The price of admission is 25 cents for adults, children free. "But," said Mr. Rowell, "I understand that many people here have been out of employment and may be unable to spare the money, while wanting to come. All who go to Currin's drug store will be given tickets to the lecture absolutely free. Those without tickets, who pay admission, will be given a year's subscription to the Pacific Patriot in addition. Those desiring free tickets should get them at once." Mr. Rowell promises much first hand information about "Portland After Dark." He uses charts, blackboard and exhibits, making it fascinating as a story, it is said.

Ben H. Hoover has proven himself to be composed of the metal from which great sleuths and detectives spring. During the absence of the police at the city hall Wednesday, a call came over the phone from Portland in which a lady there asked the police of St. Johns to take charge of an auto belonging to her and which was being driven to St. Johns by some one without her consent. The police not being at hand just then, the dormant detective propensities of Mr. Hoover sprang to life, and he decided that he could act on behalf of the police. So with Sherlock Holmes shrewdness, he hid himself to South Edison street, and there seeing an auto answering the description of the one in question, promptly halted the driver and took the machine in charge, which proved to be the right one. Two ladies who were also occupants of the car, declared that Ben was the handsomest and most courteous officer they had ever met. Ben's friends are now urging that he apply for a star as special policeman.

Hazen Smith Killed

Hazen Smith, son of Captain and Mrs. F. E. Smith, died Sunday morning from the effects of a pistol wound in his lung, received while attempting to climb through a window of a confectionery store at 590 Broadway, Portland. The shot was fired by P. G. Pangborn, proprietor of the store. Hazen has been a student of the James John High and was well liked by the faculty and fellow students. He was prominent in basketball and track events. The parents have the sympathy of the whole community in the sad hour of affliction.

The funeral of Hazen S. Smith, son of F. E. and Ida B. Smith, was held in the Zellers undertaking parlors, Portland, January 19th. The writer officiated. Hazen was a pupil in the James John high school, and was considered by his teachers an excellent student. He met his death from a gun wound last Sunday morning. A grave question confronts our community as to where the responsibility rests in the death of this boy. Society should become more interested in investigating the rising generation with strong characteristic manhood and womanhood. Hazen is survived by father, mother, one sister and eight brothers. Let us ask ourselves how far our responsibility extends in this matter and sorrow accordingly. Let us seek to throw about our boys and girls the very best possible environments. Parents alone cannot bring about the desired conditions in a community. Cooperation on the part of everybody will be needed to accomplish the best results.—J. A. Goode.
